Promotion/Retention

How can I make sure my child is promoted to the next grade level?

It is the policy of Urbana Middle School to promote students to the next grade or retain students in the same grade based primarily on academic performance in all classes. Students will earn one point for each passing quarter grade they earn in each class. In general, there are 32 points possible. A student must earn at least 26 points (80%) to be promoted automatically to the next grade level. If a student has fewer than 26 points, that student will be considered for summer school. If a student is found in need of attending summer school, the student may be required to attend summer school. A student found in need of attending summer school, may be retained in the current grade for failure to attend and/or successfully complete summer school.

(Note: There are various opportunities for students to recover points throughout the school year.)

UMS's Mission, Vision, and Beliefs

What is the mission of UMS?

The mission of Urbana Middle School, a community of learning, is to engage and inspire students while promoting their intellectual, social, and emotional growth.

What is UMS's vision for the future?

UMS promotes its mission through a vision for academic excellence, developmental responsiveness, and social equity.

ACADEMIC EXCELLENCE. Urbana Middle School is academically excellent. UMS challenges all students to use their minds well, providing them with the curriculum, instruction, assessment, support, and time they need to meet rigorous academic standards. UMS recognizes that early adolescence is characterized by dramatic cognitive growth, which enables students to think in more abstract and complex ways. Our curriculum and extra-curricular programs are designed to be challenging and engaging, tapping young adolescents' boundless energy, interests, and curiosity. Students will learn to understand important concepts, develop essential skills, and apply what they learn to real-world problems. Every adult in our school maintains a rich academic environment by working with colleagues in our schools and community to deepen our knowledge and improve our practice.

DEVELOPMENTAL RESPONSIVENESS. UMS is developmentally responsive. UMS creates small learning communities of adults and students in which stable, close, and mutually respectful relationships support all students' intellectual, ethical, and social growth. UMS provides comprehensive services to foster healthy physical and emotional development. Students have opportunities for both independent inquiry and learning in cooperation with others. Students have time to be reflective and numerous opportunities to make decisions about their learning. UMS involves families as partners in the education of their children by keeping them well informed, helping them develop their expectations and skills to support learning, and assuring their participation in decision-making. UMS is deeply rooted in the community while providing students opportunities for active citizenship. Students and staff use the community as a classroom, and community members provide resources, connections, and active support.

SOCIAL EQUITY. UMS is socially equitable. UMS seeks to keep students' future options open. UMS has high expectations for all students and is committed to helping each child produce work of high quality. UMS makes sure that all students are in academically rigorous classes appropriate to the child that are staffed by experienced and expertly prepared teachers. UMS acknowledges and respects students' histories, cultures, and previous life experiences. UMS works to educate every child well and to overcome systematic variation in resources and outcomes related to race, class, gender, and ability. UMS engages their communities in supporting all students' learning and growth.

Restorative Practices

What is Restorative Practices?

Beginning in the 2015-2016 school year, UMS started implementing Restorative Practices (RP) as part of our social-emotional supports. The objective of RP is to improve school climate and break the cycle of repeating conflict and ongoing harm by dealing with issues underlying harmful behavior and addressing the needs and feelings of individuals who were affected. RP is a term used to describe a variety of processes that focus on building relationships, identifying harm and making amends or repairing relationships, instead of excluding students from the school community. Although in some cases RP may take the place of punitive discipline, even with RP in place, students may continue to receive traditional disciplinary consequences.

RP is a broad umbrella that includes general work with all students and staff on how to listen and respond effectively to others and includes direct, intensive interventions with specific students. Most students only experience RP through activities during Advisory. On a regular basis students participate in advisory classroom circles, classroom-based climate discussions, and community-building activities. The purpose of these conversation-based activities is to teach and practice social skills such as listening, empathy, and clear communication with peers.

Other RP support practices in place at UMS include a full-time RP Facilitator, ongoing groups such as SPARCS (for students who have experienced major trauma), Social Connections (for students who persistently disrupt classroom settings), Leadership Advisory (for students interested in delving deeper into RP and leading RP activities among peers), and other social-emotional support groups as needed.

If there is a conflict involving a student, whether at school or outside of school, students and/or staff may participate voluntarily in a Restorative Conversation. A trained staff member facilitates these conversations, and these conversations are intended to help students and staff resolve minor conflicts.

If there is a more serious conflict involving a student (e.g. physical violence, harassment, bullying, or a conflict unable to be resolved through a Restorative Conversation), whether at school or outside of school, students and staff may participate voluntarily in a Conflict Circle. A Conflict Circle is facilitated by one or two trained adult circle keepers and includes the parties that were perceived to have done harm, parties who perceive themselves as having been harmed, and those who feel impacted by what happened, which may include school staff and/or family members, as well as peers

The general process of a Conflict Circle is as follows:

1. Initiating the Conflict Circle. Anyone involved in the conflict, including students, staff, and/or family members, may request the conflict circle. A circle may be requested by speaking with a dean, counselor, social worker, school administrator, or the restorative practices facilitator. Alternatively, the person initiating the request may complete the “Restorative Practices Conflict Circle Request” form and turn it in to the main office.
2. Exploration Meeting / Circle Preparation. After receiving the request, at least one trained adult will meet with participants to explore their needs and the possibility of participating in a Conflict Circle. All participants voluntarily take part in these individual or small group exploratory meetings. The purpose of the exploration meeting is to identify the conflict and the individuals who need to be present, support those individuals in gaining clarity about their feelings and needs, explain the Circle process, and obtain informed consent to participate in the Conflict Circle, if participants want to proceed.
3. The Conflict Circle. After all participants have been prepared for the Conflict Circle, participants voluntarily take part in the Conflict Circle. During a Conflict Circle, a particular dialogue process is followed and all parties have the opportunity to be heard. At least one trained adult facilitates the Conflict Circle.
4. Agreements. During the last part of the Conflict Circle, participants are encouraged to make agreements in order to repair any harm done as a result of the conflict, make amends, and create conditions in which future harm is less likely. Agreements are written and agreed to by all parties.
5. Follow-up. After the Conflict Circle, a trained adult will check in with the participants to see if they are satisfied with how things have unfolded after the Circle. If there are concerns with the agreements or if participants are dissatisfied for other reasons, an additional Restorative Conversation or Conflict Circle may be initiated.
